WHAT WOULD YOU DO FOR DETROIT WITH $7 MILLION?

Join us to learn how to voice your demands to local decision makers. We will show you how to make a persuasive public comment to your City Council representative using ShotSpotter as an example.

ShotSpotter is a gunshot surveillance system used by Detroit Police for $7 million in its last contract. Dats shows ShotSpotter is unreliable, ineffective at reducing gun violence, and drains resources from solutions that actually work. Community interventions work better and cost less.

JOIN US TO LEARN HOW TO MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD!

Our representatives in City Council decide on issues that impact how we live by setting the City budget. We can tell our reps how we want our tax money to work for us by making public comments. Join us to learn how to make your own comment about issues important to you!

Detroit's contract for ShotSpotter is up for renewal this year, which means we must voice our concerns to City Council now. Read more here:
